

Artist Paints Abstract on Canvas To Music!

Charles Huckeba, acrylic painter, has been all over the world collecting sketches of petroglyphs on countless awesome, breath-taking locations. Graduating from the University of California, with an Art History degree, has given him a great respect for the past. Huckeba states, “Based on my education, my experience over the years as well as art history, I would suggest that abstract painting is the purest form of painting, of absolute realism.”

Huckeba’s contemporary petroglyphic work is characterized by strong textural images, ranging in color palette from muted earth and sea tones to vibrant jewel tones of the desert. His abstract work is explosive state-of-the-art painting - high intensity expressionism rendered in deep textures and vivid color.
